Police officers, literally wearing brown shirts, no less, keep a firm guard in front of a conservative fundraiser and political strategy meeting attended by the Koch Brothers where one assumes the word "tyranny" is used

koch-dee.jpg

Dee Ives, an Air Force veteran, proud "Reagan Republican" and registered nurse, works on getting signatures to recall Republican Governor Scott Walker in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH

koch-rotunda.jpg

Protesters fill the rotunda in the Wisconsin State Capital in the run up to Gov. Walker's anti-union bill in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH

koch-marijo.jpg

Mari Jo Kabat, an elementary school librarian, lifelong Republican and Christian conservative, in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH

koch-nolonger.jpg

A protester holds a sign that we suspect we'll see a lot more of in the future in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH

koch-nextquestion.jpg

Ciara Matthews, campaign spokeswoman for Gov. Scott Walker, politely requests the next question instead of answering the one filmmaker Tia Lessin asked her in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH.

koch-walker.jpg

Governor Scott Walker announces a policy that will most certainly benefit people who aren't billionaires, scout's honor, in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH.

koch-costumed.jpg

A man explains to filmmakers Carl Deal and Tia Lessin how he's claimed Sarah Palin as "his woman" and has an invitation for her, sealed with a "T" for tea party, while wearing a costume that very clearly states "I have a valid political point to make and should be taken quite seriously" in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH.

koch-debris.jpg

Campaign signs litter the highway during the GOP primary season in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH that challenges us to consider how much fun it would've been to see Gov. Rick Perry try to debate President Barack Obama.

koch-lyinafrican.jpg

An absolutely not racist attendee at a tea party rally holds a sign that is absolutely not racist in any way, shape, or form in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH.

koch-tighten.jpg

A reasonable protest sign reflecting many Union members' sentiments (that, unfortunately, would be ignored) carried by a protester angry about Gov. Scott Walker's anti-union legislation in a scene from CITIZEN KOCH.
